SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1869.

THE DRAWBACK FRAUDS. A NEW species of fraud has been devised in that hot-bed of corruption, the New York Custom House, by which the nation has already been robbed by one gang of rascals of $700,000. By the collusion of corrupt officials, the aid of a complaisant notary public, and the services of a Washington claim agent, the sum named was obtained during the years 1866, 1867, and 1868 on fraudulent claims for drawback based on the law providing that when goods on which an internal revenue tax has been paid are exported, this tax shall be refunded by the Government. We pubiished the particulars of this nefarious transaction in THE TELEGRAPH of yesterday. The array of evidence appears strong enough to secure the conviction and punishment of the leading offenders; but it will be impossible to avoid a constant repetition of frauds of much greater importance while the nation persists in the policy which concentrates the bulk of the Custom House business of the whole country at New York. The magnitude of the transactions in that establishment and the haste with which they are conducted render it impossible to insure a watchful supervision of the conduct of all the clerks and other appointees, and the most faithful and vigilant of Collectors cannot protect the Government against the innumerable schemes which are concocted to plunder it. The true remedy is to diffuse the Governmental transactions appertaining to foreign commerce fairly over the country, entrusting the Custom House in each leading city with the ascertainment as well as the collection of duties on all goods brought from abroad by its importers, whether they are first landed on American soil at New York or elsewhere. An equitable distribution of this business would afford all the Custom Houses time and opportunity to examine goods, invoices, entries, and certificates thoroughly, and bring the transactions at New York within manageable limits. Until this reform is effected the nation must expect a continuation of a thousand species of rascality in the great Wall street hot-bed of corruption. Many millions of gold revenue are lost annually in that office, and these losses will never be materially diminished while it remains unnecessarily overcrowded with

THE PRESBYTERIAN REUNION.

THE consolidation of the Old and New School branches of the Presbyterian Church was finally accomplished at Pittsburg yesterday by the Assemblies convened to officially count up the votes of the various Presbyteries on the reunion proposition. Every New School Presbytery had voted affirmatively, and a large majority of the Old School Presbyterians had also approved reunion. By this action the combined Church presents an aggregate of 51 Synods, 256 Presbyteries, 4229 ministers, and 431,463 members. A hope was expressed that at no distant period all the other branches of Presbyteriainsm would be combined in the same organization; and as this appears to be the tendency of the age, the fulfilment of this desire is not improbable. The formal consolidation was made in a very affecting and impressive manner, and it is to be followed up by an effort to raise a large sum of money as a thank-offering. A General Assembly of the united Church is to be held in this city in May next.

THE Spaniards are still in a quandary about filling their vacant throne. Those who are anxious to assume the purple are not wanted, and those who have hitherto figured as the most popular candidates have shown a modest hesitation about accepting that is remarkable. The young Duke of Genoa has of late taken the precedence of the other aspirants, and his chances for succeeding to what was once the proudest throne in Europe appear to be very promising. A new obstacle is now thrown in his way, however, by the opposition of his mother, who objects to his assuming the responsibilities and incurring the dangers of the position. It is something new for the mother of a genuine European prince to make an objection of this kind, and it is a significant sign of the times, indicating that king-craft is losing some of its attractions, or that it is becoming a more difficult business than it was at one time. It is evident that the Duke of Genoa, if he accepts the throne of Spain, will, to use a vulgarism, have a hard road to travel; and his mother proves herself to be a sensible woman by refusing to allow herself to be so blinded by her ambition as not to see the peril in which her son will be placed. We expect that, after all, the Spaniards will finally be obliged to adopt our suggestion, and persuade some smart Yankee to come over and king it for them.

OF CITY DEPARTMENTS YESTERDAY afternoon a caucus of the Republican members of Councils was held, for the purpose of nominating the heads of the city departments. There were several contestants for the positions of Chief Engineer of the Water Works and Agent of the Girard Estate, and a very decided effort was made to oust the present incumbents. The gentlemen the present incumbents. The gentlemen that they are all good people, without regard the street, show manage those departments, how-that they are all good people, without regard to safe, etc., will invariably wip, and the remarkable and the same sufficiently proved their efficiency ever, have audiciently proved their efficiency to caste, etc., mill invariably win, and the Evening Telegraph to overcome all opposition, and the entire man who points out the wrong doings will list of officers as at present constituted were lose. renominated on the first ballot. The nominees are Mahlon H. Dickinson, Chief Commissioner of Highways; James Work and Hiram Horter, Commissioners of Highways; Frederick Graeff, Chief Engineer of the Water Works; Charles E. Smith, Superintendent of the Girard Estate; Samuel S. Cavin, Agent of the Girard Estate; and Jonathan H. Pugh, Commissioner of Markets and City Property.

These gentlemen during the time they have been in office have performed their duties in a manner entirely satisfactory to the public, and the action of the caucus yesterday in renominating them was a proper recognition of their services, and it will meet the general approval of the Republican citizens of Philadelphia. All of these departments are important, and their proper administration is a matter that concerns every citizen. When the right men get into such offices they ought to be kept there, and as the nominations made yesterday are equivalent to elections, we have an assurance that for the coming term at least the business of these municipal departments will be conducted in a still proper and acceptable manner.

CHEEK.

Or all the terms used in the English language to express an idea, the word "cheek" is, perhaps, the least understood and the most abused. Ability, confidence in one's own powers, understanding, and absolute talent, are all usually placed under the one common head of "cheek;" and yet there is really as great a difference between the real meaning of the terms as there is between darkness and daylight.

Talent, as usually understood, is a culture of those ideas engendered by deep study and research. Tact is a natural gift with which some men are endowed by their Creator, and differs from talent, because it grasps all things as it finds them, and makes use of them, while talent is pondering over the probabilities. Tact is the natural bud of a thriving plant: talent is the artificial flower of a plant which, but for the care bestowed upon it, would droop and be crushed before it had vitality enough to make itself heard. Tact is the element which makes the really great man. Talent is the faithful servant,

"Cheek" is a talent. It comes from cultivation, and is generally found where the ground is least fruitful. Confidence is most usually put under the head of "cheek," and yet it is vastly different from it. "Cheek" will force its way to places where it is not wanted, and when unmasked will be kicked out for its trouble. Confidence demands its right to be heard, and will win plaudits and encouragement from those of understanding for its unceasing watchfulness, care, and Cheek is the natural production of ignorance and want of understanding, but is seldom, if ever, innate in anybody. As an example, or rather as a simile, we take George Francis Train as a man of "cheek." He is blustering, noisy, and, after all, carries no mental weight with nim. We could easily select a living simile of the other idea, but it will answer the purpose to simply state Rufus Choate was an excellent example of the man of tact, or confidence. Added to his natural tact, he had cultivation, and what his natural abilities pointed out he invariably carried to a successful conclusion. We select these two names-Train and Choate-because they are both known to our day and generation.

"Cheek" never made Astor, Peabody, or Girard the men they were. Confidence, tact, did! "Cheek" made Barnum, and countless other men like him, who have or will sink to the grave without leaving a mark behind them, save of their deceit and humbuggery. Among the statesmen of the present age. Douglas and Lincoln were the men of tact and confidence. It is said that questions frequently came before Mr. Douglas of which he was almost entirely ignorant, and yet we find him grasping the line of argument and mastering the subject while still in course of consideration, and finally expressing himself upon it as clearly and as learnedly as those gave it a lengthy considera-Mr. Lincoln never pretended tion. to understand a subject which he really knew nothing about, but every man, woman, and child in the land knows that no sooner was the matter placed before him than he would select his own analysis, and nine times out of ten his grounds were secure. He, like Douglass, was confident, but no man ever saw in either, anything that could be called "cheek."

Nowhere than in politicians is "cheek' more plainly visible. In fact, it would appear, and no doubt is, one of the prime elements of success. The art of fawning and playing the lickspittal is the natural accompaniment of "cheek;" and there again it differs from confidence, because the man who is confident of his own ability never stoops to cultivate the acquaintance of a man who does not himself desire the acquaintance. "Cheek" is submissive and servant-like in the presence of those who employ him; but he is heartless, and when the fortune of his present master is on the wane, he quickly flies to the other side, and adds his kick to those already being administered to the man who, up to this time, has been his friend. Confidence is always manly. Confident that he is right, he fears no man, and is the same before your face that he is behind your back. "Cheek" will flatter and cajole; contidence expresses his opinion, when asked, plainly RENOMINATION OF THE HEADS and without deceit. But few men are impervious to flattery-it is far more pleasant than a blunt opinion, no matter how true the opinion may be-and this is one reason why the man of "cheek" is generally the most successful man in the political arena. The public, the good, dear, easily-gulled public loves flattery much better than an individual does, although its effects are not so visible, and the man who pampers the public by telling them | o'cleck

The confident man is not a "cheeky" man. The elements that go to make up the one cannot be found in the other. The one is entitled to our greatest respect, the other to our most unmitigated scorn; and he who is accustomed to use the term "check" should first carefully analyze his man before he applies it, or may find, when too late to mend, that he has cruelly wronged a fellow being to whom society, and perhaps himself, owes much that is really good and commendable.

CENTRAL RAILROAD OF IOWA

SEVEN PER CENT. COLD

FIRST MORTGAGE

Free of Government Tax,

95 and Accrued Interest.

This road runs through the richest and most thickly settled portion of this magnificent State, and is the only link wanting to connect St. Louis and St. Paul by a direct line, 147 miles shorter than any

It runs through the great coal fields of Southern Iowa to the North, where coal is indispensable and must be carried. It runs from the great lumber regions of the North, through a district of country which is destitute of this prime necessity.

IT DOES NOT BUN THROUGH A WILDERNESS, Where it would wait for years for a population to give it business, but through a tier of counties which are now producing about twenty million bushels of grain, most of which is freight for railroads,

Forty-five miles are just finished, and the Superintendent reports that on the portion open for business the net earnings are more than the interest liabilities. Sixty miles more are graded, and a million and a half of dollars have already been expended on the The mortgage is made to the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, and bonds can be issued only at the rate of $16,000 per mile, or only half the amount upon some other roads. Special security is provided for the principal and for the payment of interest, First mortgages upon most railroads are the very safest investments, and, so far as we can learn, there is not a single completed line in the Northwest which upon its stock. The immense grain and other freights to be carried away, and the domestic supplies to be brought

is not only paying its interest, but a good dividend

in, ensure a profitable business. First Mortgage Bonds for so small an amount upon a road running through such a rich and already well-settled part of Iowa, can well be recommended as a perfectly safe as well as very profitable investment. At the present rate they pay about ten per cent, on the investment. Over $400,000 have aiready been taken by the Company's officers and others interested in the exterprise.
